

Communication Ethics and Global Change (Communications)

This volume addresses the topic of ethics on an international scale. Written by scholars from six continents and 14 countries, this collection offers a perspective on the political, methodological, technological and comparative views of nations towards ethical codes for their mass media. It describes the gulfs that separate - and the bridges that relate - conceptions of media ethics for nations ranging from Australia to Peru, Nigeria to the Soviet Union. It includes international references, bibliographies, and codes of ethics, and also offers a topical introduction orienting general readers to the field.
