

Forge-practice (elementary)

From the Preface: The author believes that the text book should be used to explain principles and give examples, not to give minute explicit directions for making a set of exercises. This necessitates an independent set of drawings for the work to be done. It is for this purpose that the set of drawings is given. The author has felt the need and lack of such drawings in the text-book as used before, and it is to remedy this defect that the addition has been made. The exercises are such as have been found useful in the shop, and an effort has also been made to give drawings of such tools as are ordinarily used in the forge and machine shops.
