

Rainbow Yarn: Navajo Weavings, Germantown Yarns & the Pennsylvania Connection

RAINBOW YARN : Navajo Weavings, Germantown Yarns & the Pennsylvania Connection The Germantown yarns produced in Eastern Pennsylvania have had a profound effect t on world tribal arts. Their bright aniline; (synthetic chemical) shades and broad color palette were considered superior by native people throughout North America and the World. No native culture embraced the yarns as whole-heartedly as the Navajo. For the Navajo, the arrival of new yarns was a watershed moment, permitting the creation of the most baroque native made textiles to date from the Southwestern United States. This 64 page high definition glossy publication highlights the yarn and the creative works of the Navajo people. The vibrant colors of the native hand spun yarn along with the eye-dazzling tribal patterns have made these into highly sought after works of art. The superior quality of raw goods along with hardworking hands, together producing high grade functional art.
