Basic Mechanics of Islamic Capitalism is a book by Lord Edwin E. Hitti published in 2007. The book has been met with great applause and is currently in use throughout the world in university courses and libraries. The book covers the major elements shaping today's Islamic financial situation and provides a very easy understanding of the Islamic religion, finance, and even law. It is a truly well thought assessment of significant historical components at part in today's Islamic rationale said Wilma K. Boss, publisher & Chief Editor of Whos Who International Magazine. In this book the author with his perception of Islam, the Muslim World and the Arab culture explains in a unique and simple way how Arabs and Muslims alike construe the notions of Capitalism. Topics covered are Islamic culture and its ideas, values and development; Islamic economics and banking systems; Shariah-compliant financial solutions; Islamic funds and trusts; Islamic law, contracts and courts; Islamic insurance; and some reflections on possible future challenges.
