

Landscaping for Repelling Deer (Specialty Garden Series) (Volume 2)

Landscaping for Repelling Deer is the second of a series of books on growing specialty gardens that will enhance our personal quality of life and help bring Nature back into our surroundings. This book is just another of a series explaining how we all can work with Nature to get what we want. These books are in a since Applied Ecology! All the books in the Specialty Garden Series document the authors personal experience solving problems and then sharing what you need to know without trial and error. This book offers a way to enjoy deer and not have them not strip your landscaping when they visit that can be expensive! For Example, plant tulips if you want to feed the deer! Planting Lupines, Daylilies, Daffodils, Elderberries and Crocuses that deer detest will keep deer moving on as the herd continues looking for food. Ideally, future rural subdivisions will enjoy wandering deer; but offering them little or no tasty foods. Eventually, deer population will balance in population based upon what is naturally available in their natural feeding grounds. Deer watching is a popular activity. This book teaches a vision or way for humans and deer to co-exist peacefully and appreciate each other without fighting over deer foodstuff. If all rural landowners read and acted on this book our deer problems would stop. The author recommends reading the book, with over 150 plants. Assess your landscaping. Then plant new beautiful plants that deer do not like incrementally over time. A landscape is a long-term investment do it wisely. The author has spent many years studying plants, ecology, wildlife and gardening; starting with training as a young boy by a Idaho Shoshone Shaman or Medicine Man, to planting and testing for his own use at home or applications in Western National Forest Management. In the 2.1 edition the reader will find very few changes, a few typing and spelling errors have been fixed.

We hope you enjoy.
