Not illustrated. 1896 Excerpt: ...hills, Whence flows my weal and mirth, I look and sigh for Him Who fills, Unseen, both heaven and earth. He is alone my help and hope, That I shall not be moved; His watchful eye is ever ope, And guardeth His beloved; The glorious God is my sole stay, He is my sun and shade; The cold by night, the heat by day, Neither shall me invade. He keeps me from the spite of foes, Doth all their plots control; And is a shield, not reckoning those, Unto my very soul. Whether abroad amidst the crowd, Or else within my door, He is my pillar and my cloud Now and for evermore. AFFLICTION. Peace! peace! it is not so. Thou dost miscal Thy physic: pills that change Thy sick accessions into settled health; This is the great elixir, that turns gall To wine and sweetness, poverty to wealth; And brings man home when he doth range. Did not He, Who ordaind the day, Ordain night too? And in the greater world display What in the lesser He would do? All flesh is clay, thou knowst; and but that God Doth use His rod, And by a fruitful change of frosts and showers Cherish, and bind thy powrs, Thou wouldst to weeds and thistles quite disperse, And be more wild than is thy verse. Sickness is wholesome, and crosses are but curbs To check the mule, unruly man; They are heavens husbandry, the famous fan, Purging the floor which chaff disturbs. Were all the year one constant sunshine, we Should have no flowers; All would be drought and leanness; not a tree Would make us bowers. Beauty consists in colour?; and thats best Which is not fixd, but flies and flows; The settled red is dull, and whites that rest Something of sickness would disclose. Vicissitude plays all the game; Nothing that stirs, Or hath a name,

But waits upon this wheel; Kingdoms too have their physic, and for steel Exchan...
