

Social Media and Your Job Search

(Free update due out by January will be emailed to any purchasers) Hundreds of out-of-work Americans are landing their dream jobs in a matter of days and weeks thanks to social media platforms, such as LinkedIn, and new digital era methods for getting seen and hired by employers. Through the use of search engine optimization (SEO) techniques, keywords and social networking savvy, my students are literally being sought after by potential employers who are directed to their online resumes. They are building important industry connections and increasing the likelihood of landing job interviews. They are moving ahead in line in front of the decision makers instead of their resume being lost in a sea of resumes because the software (ATS) Applicant Tracking System that the recruiter uses, kicked their resume out due to lack of keywords. It is my hope that this small eBook will get you started in using the correct approach to getting hired in the digital social media era. My goal is to help as many Americans get back to work as quickly as possible by learning these techniques and pricing it for the out of work pocketbook. I wish you all the best of luck in our job search. Keep your chin up!
